“All I ask is that today, you do the best work of your entire life”

- Steve Jobs

This is a quote I keep dear to my heart and one that I aspire to uphold each and every day. Whether I am at home with my family, working long hours at the office, or heading to the next AIA meeting, I see life as an opportunity to make a difference in the lives of those around. My goal, each day, is to think outside the box and try to improve on what currently is. Should I continue my current role of treasurer for AIA NJ into the following term, I will be pushing forward to make sure that a positive difference is made within our organization and environment. Change in life is inevitable. If we are diligent in our efforts, change will be for the better.

Biography:

Matthew began his involvement with the AIA upon his completion of the five-year NAAB accredited degree at New Jersey Institute of Technology. Being a long-time resident of Marlboro, NJ, he became active with activities and meetings presented by the Jersey Shore AIA Chapter. While working in Lakewood, NJ, Matthew was eager to volunteer his time with the AIA and began attending both general meetings and board meetings. Education and the progression of the profession has been a major focus of Matthew, so upon being presented the opportunity to become involved with the AIA NJ Emerging Professionals Community, he was ecstatic to participate and help gain the involvement of those earlier in their careers.

Matthew has made it a priority in his career to not only learn the requirements of practicing architecture within responsible care, but also the process and requirements of becoming a registered architect. This information has proven useful not only along his own path, but as he helps advise young members of the profession working towards the completion of their licensing requirements.

Currently Matthew is working as a project architect with Bower Lewis Thrower Architects (BLTa) in Philadelphia, PA and maintains his residency in Marlboro, NJ. His leadership and knowledge of architectural design has provided great benefit to both his clients and the communities in which his projects are sited. As a professional, Matthew would like to continue expanding his experience and knowledge of the profession to continue a positive impact and growth of the built environment and quality of life for those occupying it.
