WHERE BUSINESS AND ARCHITECTURE INTERSECT

Speaker: Stephanie Rigolot, Owner, What the What, LLC

Description: "In the modern world of business, it is useless to be a creative, original thinker unless you can also sell what you create." – David Ogilvy, Found of Ogilvy & Mather (known as "the Father of Advertising")

As architecture currently endures an internal battle between mercenary and altruistic motivations, there has never been a better selling point than quality design that can improve people's lives nor a better means to create true impact than successfully converting new business opportunities.

While there exist architecture firms that happen to be businesses and, conversely, businesses that happen to sell architecture, these two coalitions are quickly converging on a middle ground. Where is that optimal junction? This lecture will explore the systems and processes that take the guess work out of authentic marketing and successful business development, identifying best practices and tangible takeaways.
